
Philippine and four young nuns left France with wagons loaded with the supplies they would need to start life in America.