

The French merchants and planters in St. Louis welcomed the nuns and wanted them to begin a school there but Bishop Du Bourg thought that St. Charles would be a better place.