

In 1818, the Religious of the Sacred Heart started their first school in St. Charles with only a few students. But in 1835, there were so many students that a permanent school was built. That building is still there today...and it's still a school.